Dear Editor

Stephen Crabb's letter last week about Tony Blair and Europe was spot on. It is good to see that at least one of our local politicians shares the views of normal people.

Tony Blair's refusal to listen to what voters are saying about Europe is typical of the arrogance he displays to anyone whose opinion does not coincide with his own.

Blair seems totally unwilling or unable to tackle the real priorities facing the country. For example, does anyone remember his promise that everyone would have access to an NHS dentist by 2001?

Yours faithfully
